Dear Parents,

A case of impetigo (krentenbaard) has been diagnosed within the school. This is a highly contagious bacterial skin infection, characterised by thickly-set clusters of spots.

Having consulted the medical centre we have been advised that you must consult your doctor immediately should you notice any skin irritation.

If your child is diagnosed as having impetigo he/she must be withdrawn from the school until the skin is completely healed.

Yours sincerely,

PP.
